"Now I leave you, the past has had its say
You're all but forgotten, a mote in my heart
Decisions have been made."

- Marillion, 'The Web'

I have and I've had many friends, both in the scene and in my private life. Some days ago somebody up there decided to end the life of one of them.

One of my best friends in the scene, CHARLIE of VARSITY, does not live anymore.

He died in a car accident on the 28th of May while heading for the TCC '93 party in Gothenburg, Sweden. His girlfriend Andrea and Mr. Alpha of Rebels were also in the car, but they survived.

Still, a few days after the news, I have problems to realise what's happened. It feels strange to know that you're never going to meet a person again, never going to read a letter from him anymore. That he's no more, gone. Off the face of the Earth.

Dead.

I was contacted by Christian years ago, at the very beginning of my computer career. I remember that I was really excited about it, because some time before I had seen his photo in a paper mag and thought he looked really cool.

I've met him three times at parties, for the first time at the Light+PHA party in 1992, and impressions of him have always given me positive feelings.

It was meant that we'd meet for the fourth time at TCC '93.

Instead, Charlie of Varsity died.

I feel terrible about what's happened, but that's nothing compared to his parents, relatives, and to Andrea and Mr. Alpha. If there only was something I could do, but no one can wake up the dead, I guess.

Charlie only became 20 years old. Such a short life, such a brutal end.

Christian, we will MISS you.

Incubus of Triad.
